

Speaker Biography

Vince Garlock

Vince Garlock is the Deputy Executive Director of the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA). AIPLA is a national bar association of over 17,000 members dedicated to improving the domestic and international laws related to all forms of intellectual property, and determined to improve and provide the highest quality of services and programs to its members. As Deputy Executive Director, Vince is involved in various aspects of the management of the Association, and is particularly involved in the shaping, development and communication of AIPLA's domestic policy initiatives. Prior to coming to AIPLA, Vince was Of Counsel to the Washington law firm of Verner, Liipfert, Bernhard, McPherson and Hand. Prior to that, Vince was counsel for several years to the House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary. He worked on the Subcommittee on Courts, the Internet and Intellectual Property, where he was involved in the consideration of numerous significant pieces of intellectual property legislation.

Prior to coming to Washington, Vince was an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Ohio. He also practiced law at a litigation firm in Ohio, and began his legal career as a criminal prosecutor for the City of Columbus. Vince holds an LLM in Intellectual Property Law from George Washington University, a J.D. from the University of Toledo, and a Bachelor of Arts from the Ohio State University.